Featured Presenter:
Robert Schalock, PhD, is Professor Emeritus at Hastings College, where he chaired the Psychology Department and directed the Cognitive Behavior Lab from 1967 to 2000. He currently has adjunct research appointments at the University of Kansas, University of Salamanca (Spain), Gent University (Belgium), and University of Chongqing (Mainland China). Since 1972, his work has focused on the development and evaluation of community-based programs for persons with disabilities and the key roles that the concept of quality of life and the supports paradigm play in planning and delivering individualized supports within a service delivery system. He has published widely in the areas of personal and program outcomes, the supports paradigm, adaptive behavior, clinical judgment, quality of life, and the transformation of disabilities organizations.

Dr. Schalock has been actively involved in the American Association on Intellectual and Developmental Disabilities since 1972. He has served as AAMR President (1997-1998) and President of the Academy on Mental Retardation (1988-1991). He is currently a member of the following AAIDD Committees: Terminology and Classification, Supports Intensity Scale, and Diagnostic Adaptive Behavior Scale.
